Condensed Catalog

Trees, Fruits and Plants

THIS is not a complete list of the stock we grow and sell, but it covers the principal items; so, if you do not see what you want, be like the boy, "call for it."

Nothing in this list is new or untried. Each item offered has been in cultivation in different localities for many years and has proven entirely hardy and reliable.

If you pay your money for low-quality stock, you will get just that, and you will not get the results from it that you should.

Invest in good trees and plants, and reap the biggest returns possible on your investment.

We Sell a Half Dozen at Dozen Rates.

Dear Sirs: The Beta Grape vines you shipped me fall of 1920 arrived in good shape and were planted per your instruction. They made nice growth the first year and better the second, bearing some fruit. The third year, 1923, they had an abundance of fruit on and would have had more if I had not pinched them back and not let them grow so much to vine. It proves to me that they will do well in this part of the country and I intend to send to you for more.
